

SPECIAL TAX NOTICE REGARDING PLAN PAYMENTS

This notice explains how you can continue to defer federal income tax on your retirement plan savings in the Plan and contains important information you will need before you decide how to receive your Plan benefits. All references to “the Code” are references to the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. This notice summarizes only the federal (not state or local) tax rules which may apply to your distribution. Because these rules are complex and contain many conditions and exceptions which we do not discuss in this notice, you may need to consult with a professional tax advisor before you receive your distribution from the Plan.

A. TYPES OF PLAN DISTRIBUTIONS

Eligibility for rollover. The Code classifies distributions into two types: (1) distributions you may roll over (“eligible rollover distributions”) and (2) distributions you may not roll over. See “Distributions not eligible for rollover” below. You also may receive a distribution under which part of the distribution is an eligible rollover distribution and part is not eligible for rollover. A rollover is a payment by you or the Plan Administrator of all or part of your benefit to another plan or IRA that allows you to continue to postpone taxation of that benefit until it is paid to you (this excludes a rollover from a pre-tax account to a Roth IRA, described in the next to last paragraph of Section B below). The Plan Administrator will assist you in identifying which portion of your distribution is an eligible rollover distribution and which portion is not eligible for rollover.

Plans that may accept a rollover. You may roll over an eligible rollover distribution (other than Roth 401(k), 403(b) and 457(b) source deferrals and earnings) either to a Roth IRA, to a traditional IRA or to an eligible employer plan that accepts rollovers. An “eligible employer plan” includes a plan qualified under Code sections 401(a), including a 401(k) plan, profit sharing plan, defined benefit plan, stock bonus plan (including an ESOP) or money purchase plan; 403(a) annuity plan; 403(b) plan; and an eligible 457(b) plan maintained by a governmental employer (governmental 457(b) plan). Special rules apply to the rollover of after-tax contributions and of Roth 401(k), 403(b) & 457(b) elective deferrals. See “After-tax contributions and Roth 401(k), 403(b) & 457(b) Elective Deferrals” section below. You may not roll over any distribution to a SIMPLE IRA or a Coverdell Education Savings Account (Formerly known as an Education IRA).

Deciding where to roll over a distribution. An eligible employer plan is not legally required to accept a rollover. Before you decide to roll over your payment to another employer plan, you should find out whether the plan accepts rollovers and, if so, the types of distributions it accepts as a rollover. Even if a plan accepts rollovers, it might not accept rollovers of certain types of distributions, such as after-tax amounts. If this is the case, and your distribution includes after-tax amounts, you may wish instead to roll your distribution over to an IRA or to split your rollover amount between the employer plan in which you will participate and an IRA. You also should find out about any documents you must complete before a receiving plan or IRA sponsor will accept a rollover. If an employer plan accepts your rollover, the plan may restrict subsequent distributions of the rollover amount or may require your spouse’s consent for any subsequent distribution. A subsequent distribution from the plan that accepts your rollover also may be subject to different tax treatment than distributions from this Plan. Check with the administrator of the plan that is to receive your rollover regarding subsequent distributions and taxation of the amount you will roll over, prior to making the rollover.

Distributions not eligible for rollover. If you wish to do a rollover, you may roll over all or part of the amount of the eligible rollover distribution. Any payment from the Plan is an eligible rollover distribution for rollover, except:

- Certain payments spread over a period of at least 10 years or over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary);
- For taxable years beginning on or before December 31, 2023, required minimum distributions after age 70½ (if you were born before July 1, 1949), after age 72 (if you were born after June 30, 1949, and before January 1, 1951), after age 73 (if you were born after December 31, 1950), or after death;
- Hardship distributions from a 401(a), 401(k) or 403(b) plans;
- Unforeseeable emergency distributions from a governmental 457(b) plans;
- Payments of employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) dividends;
- Corrective distributions of contributions that exceed tax law limitations;
- Loans treated as deemed distributions (for example, loans in default due to missed payments before your employment ends);
- Cost of life insurance paid by the Plan;
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions requested that you request to be withdrawn within 90 days of your first contribution;
- Amounts treated as distributed because of a prohibited allocation of S corporation stock under an ESOP (also, there generally be adverse tax consequences if S corporation stock is held by an IRA); and
- Distributions of certain premiums for health and accident insurance.

The Plan Administrator or the payor can tell you what portion of a payment is eligible for rollover.

After-tax Contributions and Roth 401(k), 403(b) & 457(b) Elective Deferrals.

After-tax contributions included in a payment are not taxed. If a payment is only part of your benefit, an allocable portion of your after-tax contributions is included in the payment, so you cannot take a payment of only after-tax contributions. However, if you have pre-1987 after-tax contributions maintained in a separate account, a special rule may apply to determine whether the after-tax contributions are included in a payment. In addition, special rules apply when you do a rollover, as described below.

After-tax rollover into an IRA. You may roll over your after-tax contributions to an IRA (including a Roth IRA) either directly or indirectly. The Plan Administrator will assist you in identifying how much of your payment is the taxable portion and how much is the after-tax portion. If you roll over after-tax contributions to an IRA, it is your responsibility to keep track of, and report to the IRS on the applicable forms, the amount of these after-tax contributions. This will enable you to determine the nontaxable amount of any future distributions from the IRA. Once you roll over your after-tax contributions to an IRA, you may not later roll over those amounts to an employer plan but may roll over your after-tax contributions to another IRA.

After-tax rollover into an employer plan. You may directly roll over after-tax contributions from the Plan to another qualified plan (including a defined benefit plan) or to a 403(b) plan if the other plan will accept the rollover and provides separate accounting for amounts rolled over, including separate accounting for the after-tax employee contributions and earnings on those contributions. You may not roll over after-tax contributions from the Plan to a governmental 457(b) plan. If you want to roll over your after-tax contributions to an employer plan that accepts these rollovers, you cannot have the after-tax contributions paid to you first. You must instruct the Plan Administrator to make a direct rollover on your behalf. Also, you may not first roll over after-tax contributions to an IRA and then roll over that amount into an employer plan.

Roth 401(k), 403(b) & 457(b) elective deferrals. You may roll over an eligible rollover distribution that consists of Roth elective deferrals and earnings (whether or not it is a “qualified” Roth distribution) either: (1) by a direct rollover to another 401(k), 403(b) or governmental 457(b) plan provided that the plan permits Roth contributions and will accept the rollover from a Roth source; or (2) by a direct or 60-day rollover to a Roth IRA. Alternatively, you can roll over the taxable portion of a non-qualified Roth distribution by a 60-day rollover to a 401(k), 403(b) or governmental 457(b) plan that permits Roth contributions. See Section C, “Taxation of Roth deferrals” and “60-day rollover option” below.

If you roll over a Roth deferral account to a Roth IRA, the amount you roll over will become subject to the tax rules that apply to the Roth IRA. In general, these tax rules are similar to those described elsewhere in this notice, but differences include:

- All of your Roth IRAs will be considered for purposes of determining whether you have satisfied the 5-year rule to enable you to receive a qualified distribution from the Roth IRA (counting from January 1 of the year for which your first contribution was made to any of your Roth IRAs).
- You will not be required to take a distribution from the Roth IRA during your lifetime and you must keep track of the aggregate amount of the after-tax contributions in all of your Roth IRAs (in order to determine your taxable income for later Roth IRA payments that are not qualified distributions).
- Eligible rollover distributions from a Roth IRA can only be rolled over to another Roth IRA.

30-day notice period/Waiver. After receiving this notice, you have at least 30 days to consider whether to receive your distribution or have the distribution directly rolled over. If you do not wish to wait until this 30-day notice period ends before your election is processed, you may waive the notice period by making an affirmative election indicating whether or not you wish to make a direct rollover. Your distribution then will be processed in accordance with your election as soon as practical after the Plan Administrator receives your election.

B. DIRECT ROLLOVER

Direct rollover process. You may elect a direct rollover of all or any portion of an eligible rollover distribution. If you elect a direct rollover, the Plan Administrator will pay the eligible rollover distribution directly to your IRA or to another eligible employer plan (or, in the case of a distribution of Roth deferrals, to a Roth IRA, or to a 401(k), 403(b) or governmental 457(b) plan that permits Roth contributions and that accepts rollovers from a Roth source) which you have designated. Alternatively, for the cash portion of your distribution, if any, the Plan Administrator may give you a check negotiable by the trustee or custodian of the recipient eligible employer plan or IRA. To complete the direct rollover, you must deliver the check to that trustee/custodian. A direct rollover amount is not subject to taxation at the time of the rollover, unless the direct rollover is from a pretax account to a Roth IRA. Except for a direct rollover of a pre-tax amount to a Roth IRA, the taxable portion of your direct rollover will be taxed later when you take it out of the IRA or the eligible employer plan. Depending on the type of plan, the later distribution may be subject to different tax treatment than it would be if you received a taxable distribution from this Plan. If you elect a direct rollover, your election form must include identifying information about the recipient IRA or plan.

Treatment of periodic distributions. If your Plan distribution is part of a series of payments over a period of less than ten years, each payment is an eligible rollover distribution. Your election to make a direct rollover will apply to all payments unless you advise the Plan Administrator of a change in your election. The Plan might not let you choose a direct rollover if your distributions for the year are less than $200. The $200 limit may apply separately to Roth distributions and pre-tax distributions.

Change in tax treatment resulting from a direct rollover. The tax treatment of any payment from the eligible employer plan or IRA receiving your direct rollover might be different than if you received your benefit in a taxable distribution directly from the Plan. For example, if you were born before January 1, 1936, you might be entitled to ten-year averaging or capital gain treatment, from a qualified plan as explained below. However, if you roll over your qualified plan benefit to a 403(b) plan, a governmental 457(b) plan, or an IRA, your benefit no longer will be eligible for that special treatment. See the sections below entitled “An additional 10% early withdrawal tax if you are under age 59½” and “Special tax treatment if you were born before 1936.”

Automatic rollover of certain distributions. If your distribution is an eligible rollover distribution and the Plan will distribute your account balance (without your consent as required by the Plan), you still may elect whether to receive or to roll over the distribution. The Plan may distribute your account without your consent in limited circumstances (e.g., if your vested account balance does not exceed $5,000 or it may disregard any amounts in your account as a result of a prior rollover to the Plan). The Plan Administrator will provide you a distribution notice and/or election forms that will inform you whether the Plan will distribute your account without your consent. If the Plan does distribute without your consent, you still may elect whether to receive the distribution or to directly roll over the distribution to another plan or to an IRA (subject to the exception for distributions less than $200 discussed above). If you do not make an election either to receive or to roll over the distribution, the Plan Administrator will roll over the distribution to an IRA in your name. You can transfer these IRA funds at any time to another IRA you designate. The Plan Administrator, in the distribution election forms, will provide you with information regarding the financial institution sponsoring this IRA.

Taxation of direct rollover of pre-tax distribution to Roth IRA. If you directly roll over a pre-tax distribution to a Roth IRA, the taxable portion of the distribution is subject to taxation for the taxable year in which the distribution occurs.

After you roll over a pre-tax distribution to a Roth IRA, later payments from the Roth IRA that are qualified distributions will not be taxed (including earnings after the rollover). A qualified distribution from a Roth IRA is a payment made after you are age 59½ (or after your death or disability, or as a qualified first-time homebuyer distribution of up to $10,000) and after you have had a Roth IRA for at least 5 years. In applying this 5-year rule, you count from January 1 of the year for which your first contribution was made to a Roth IRA. Payments from the Roth IRA that are not qualified distributions will be taxed to the extent of earnings after the rollover, including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies). You do not have to take required minimum distributions from a Roth IRA during your lifetime. For more information, see IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs) and IRS Publication 590-B, Distributions from Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs).

You also may roll over a pre-tax distribution (and any after-tax contributions you receive as part of the distribution) using an in-plan Roth direct rollover to a designated Roth account in this Plan. See “Taxation of in-plan Roth direct rollover of non-Roth account” immediately below.

Taxation of in-plan Roth direct rollover of non-Roth account. If your distribution is an eligible rollover distribution other than from a designated Roth account, the Plan may permit you to make an in-plan Roth direct rollover of the distribution to a designated Roth account in the Plan. The following special rules apply to an in-plan Roth rollover:

- If you roll over the distribution to a designated Roth account in the Plan, the amount of the distribution rolled over (reduced by any after-tax amounts directly rolled over) will be taxed. However, the 10% additional tax on early distributions will not apply (unless you take the amount rolled over out of the designated Roth account within the 5-year period that begins on January 1 of the year of the rollover).
- If you roll over the payment to a designated Roth account in the Plan, later distributions from the designated Roth account that are qualified distributions will not be taxed (including earnings after the rollover). A qualified distribution from a designated Roth account is a payment made both after you attain age 59½ (or after your death or disability) and after you have had a designated Roth account in the Plan for a period of at least 5 years. The 5-year period described in the preceding sentence begins on January 1 of the year your first contribution was made to the designated Roth account. However, if you made a direct rollover to a designated Roth account in the Plan from a designated Roth account in a plan of another employer, the 5-year period begins on January 1 of the year your first contribution was made to the designated Roth account in the plan or, if earlier, to the designated Roth account in the plan of the other employer. Payments from the designated Roth account that are not qualified distributions will be taxed to the extent allocable to earnings after the rollover, including the 10% additional tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies). With respect to taxable years beginning after 2023, you do not have to take required minimum distributions from a designated Roth account during your lifetime.

Other special rules: You also may have special rollover rights if you were affected by a federally declared disaster (or similar event), or if you received a distribution on account of a disaster. For more information on special rollover rights related to disaster relief, see the IRS website at irs.gov.

C. DISTRIBUTIONS YOU RECEIVE

Taxation of eligible rollover distributions. The taxable portion of an eligible rollover distribution which you elect to receive is taxable to you in the year you receive it unless, within 60 days following receipt, you roll over the distribution to an IRA, to another eligible employer plan, or in-plan direct rollovers from a non-Roth account to a Roth account with the same plan.

Taxation of Roth deferrals. If your distribution includes Roth 401(k), 403(b) or 457(b) elective deferrals, the taxation of the Roth deferrals depends on whether or not the distribution is a qualified distribution. For a distribution of Roth deferrals to be a qualified distribution, you must have satisfied two requirements: (1) the distribution must occur on or after the date you attain age 59½, on or after the date of your death, or on account of your being disabled; and (2) the distribution must occur after the end of the 5th calendar year beginning with the first calendar year for which you made Roth deferrals to the Roth 401(k) plan. If the distribution of Roth deferrals is a qualified distribution, then neither the deferrals nor the earnings distributed on the deferrals will be taxable to you. If the distribution is not a qualified distribution, then the portion of the distribution representing your Roth deferrals will not be taxable to you, but the portion of the distribution representing earnings on the Roth deferrals will be taxable to you in the year you receive the distribution, unless you elect a direct rollover as described in Section B above, or within 60 days following receipt, you roll over the distribution to a Roth IRA, or you roll over the earnings on the Roth deferrals to a qualified plan or to a 403(b) plan, as explained under “60-day rollover option” below.

Withholding on eligible rollover distributions. The taxable portion of your eligible rollover distribution that is not actually rolled over is subject to 20% federal income tax withholding. You may not waive this withholding. For example, if you elect to receive a taxable eligible rollover distribution of $5,000, the Plan will pay you only $4,000 and will send to the IRS $1,000 as income tax withholding. You will receive a Form 1099-R from the Plan reporting the full $5,000 as a distribution from the Plan. The $1,000 withholding amount applies against any federal income tax you may owe for the year. The direct rollover is the only means of avoiding this 20% withholding. Note that taxes and penalties with regard to the distribution may exceed the 20% withheld.

60-day rollover option. The direct rollover explained in Section B above is not the only way to make a rollover. If you receive payment of an eligible rollover distribution, you still may roll over all or any portion of the distribution to an IRA (including a Roth IRA, subject to the limitations described in Section A) or to another eligible employer plan that accepts rollovers, except to the extent the distribution consists of Roth deferrals and earnings on the Roth deferrals. You may roll over the Roth deferrals and earnings on the Roth deferrals to a Roth IRA, or you may roll over only the taxable earnings (if any) on the Roth deferrals (but not the Roth deferrals) to a 401(k) plan or to a 403(b) plan that permits Roth deferrals. If you decide to roll over the distribution, you must make the rollover within 60 days of your receipt of the payment. The portion of your distribution which you to roll over generally is not subject to taxation until you receive distributions from the IRA or eligible employer plan. However, see “Taxation of direct rollover of pre-tax distribution to Roth IRA,” above.

You may roll over 100% of your eligible rollover distribution even though the Plan Administrator has withheld 20% of the distribution for income tax withholding. If you elect to roll over 100% of the distribution, you must obtain other money within the 60-day period to contribute to the IRA or eligible employer plan to replace the 20% withheld. If you elect to roll over only the 80% which you receive, the 20% withheld will be subject to taxation.

Example: Assume the taxable portion of your eligible rollover distribution is $5,000, and you do not elect a direct rollover. The Plan pays you $4,000, withholding $1,000 for income taxes. However, assume within 60 days after receiving the $4,000 payment, you decided to roll over the entire $5,000 distribution. To make the rollover, you will roll over the $4,000 you received from the Plan and you will contribute $1,000 from other sources (your savings, a loan, etc.). In this case, you will not have any tax liability with respect to the Plan distribution. The Plan will report a $5,000 distribution for the year, and you will report a $5,000 rollover. When you file your income tax return, you may receive a refund of the $1,000 withheld. If you roll over only the $4,000 paid from the Plan, the $1,000 you do not roll over is taxable. In addition, the $1,000 you do not roll over may be subject to an additional 10% early withdrawal tax. See “An additional 10% early withdrawal tax if you are under age 59½” below. When you file your income tax return, you still may receive an income tax refund, but the refund likely will be smaller because $1,000 of the distribution is taxable.

Example: If you do a 60-day rollover to an IRA of only a portion of a payment made to you, the portion rolled over consists first of the amount that would be taxable if not rolled over. For example, assume you are receiving a distribution of $12,000, of which $2,000 is after-tax contributions, and no part of the distribution is directly rolled over. In this case, if you roll over $10,000 to an IRA that is not a Roth IRA in a 60-day rollover, no amount is taxable because the $2,000 amount not rolled over is treated as being after-tax contributions.

Generally, the 60-day rollover deadline cannot be extended. However, the IRS has the limited authority to waive the deadline under certain extraordinary circumstances, such as when external events prevented you from completing the rollover by the 60-day rollover deadline. Under certain circumstances, you may claim eligibility for a waiver of the 60-day rollover deadline by making a written self-certification. Otherwise, to apply for a waiver from the IRS, you must file a private letter ruling request with the IRS. Private letter ruling requests require the payment of a nonrefundable user fee. For more information, see IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs).

Withholding on distributions not eligible for rollover. The 20% withholding described above does not apply to any taxable portion of your distribution that is not an eligible rollover distribution. You may elect whether to have federal income tax withholding apply to that portion. If you do not wish to have any income taxes withheld on that portion of your distribution, or if you wish to have an amount other than 10% withheld, you will need to sign and date IRS Form W-4R, checking the box opposite line 1. The Plan Administrator will provide you Form W-4R (or a substitute Form W-4R) if your distribution includes an amount that does not constitute an eligible rollover distribution. If you do not return the Form W-4R to the Plan Administrator prior to the distribution, the Plan Administrator will treat the failure to return the form as an affirmative election to have 10% withholding apply.

An additional 10% early withdrawal tax if you are under age 59½. If you receive a distribution from a Plan other than from governmental 457(b) plan before you reach age 59½ and you do not roll over the distribution, the taxable portion of your distribution may be subject to an additional 10% tax in addition to any federal income taxes unless an exception applies. For example, the additional 10% early withdrawal tax does not apply if you separate from service with the employer during or after the calendar year in which you attain age 55, and then receive a distribution. See IRS Form 5329 and instruction for more information on the additional 10% early withdrawal tax.

The additional 10% early withdrawal tax will not apply to distributions from a governmental 457(b) plan, except to the extent the distribution (including earnings) is attributable to an amount you rolled over to that plan from another type of eligible employer plan or IRA. Any amount rolled over from a governmental 457(b) plan to another type of eligible employer plan or to a traditional IRA will become subject to the additional 10% early withdrawal tax if it is distributed to you before you reach age 59½, unless one of the following exceptions applies:

- Payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least 55 in the year of the separation.
- Payments that start after you separate from service if paid at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over your life or life expectancy (or the joint lives or joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary.)
- Payments from a governmental defined benefit pension plan or governmental defined contribution plan if you separated from service as a qualified public safety officer and you (1) were at least age 50 in the year of separation or (2) have at least 25 years of service under the Plan
- Payments from a tax-qualified plan or section 403(b) plan made after you separate from service if you are an employee who provides firefighting services and you (1) will be at least age 50 in the year of the separation or (2) have at least 25 years of service under the Plan.
- Payments of up to $5,000 made to you from a defined contribution plan if the payment is a qualified birth or adoption distribution.
- Payments made due to disability.
- Payments made while you are terminally ill.
- Payments after your death.
- Payments of ESOP dividends.
- Corrective distribution of contributions that exceed tax law limitations.
- Cost of life insurance paid by the Plan.
- Payments made directly to the government to satisfy a federal tax levy.
- Payments made under a qualified domestic relations order (QDRO).
- Payments up to the amount of your deductible medical expenses.
- Certain payments made while you are on active duty if you were a member of a reserve component called to duty after September 11, 2001, for more than 179 days.
- Payments of certain automatic enrollment contributions that you request to withdraw within 90 days of the first contribution, and
- Payments of up to $22,000 made in connection with federally-declared excepted from additional income tax by federal legislation relating to certain emergencies and declared disasters.

If you receive a payment from a Roth IRA when you are under age 59½, you will have to pay the 10% additional income tax on early distributions on the earnings paid from the Roth IRA, unless an exception applies, or the payment is a qualified distribution. In general, the exceptions to the 10% additional income tax for early distributions from a Roth IRA listed above are the same as the exceptions for early distributions from a plan. However, there are a few differences for payments from a Roth IRA, including:

- The exception for payments made after you separate from service if you will be at least age 55 in the year of the separation (or age 50 or following 25 years of service for qualified public safety employees and employees providing firefighting services) does not apply.
- The exception for QDROs does not apply (although a special rule applies under which, as part of a divorce or separation agreement, a tax-free transfer may be made directly to a Roth IRA of a spouse or former spouse).
- The exception for payments made at least annually in equal or close to equal amounts over a specified period applies without regard to whether you have had a separation from service.
- There are additional exceptions for (1) payments for qualified higher education expenses, (2) payments up to $10,000 used in a qualified first-time home purchase, and (3) payments for health insurance premiums after you have received unemployment compensation for 12 consecutive weeks (or would have been eligible to receive unemployment compensation but for self-employed status); and (4) Payments of net income attributable to an excess IRA contribution made in a calendar year where such amounts are distributed by tax return deadline for the year (including extensions) and no deduction is allowed for the excess contribution.

If you are not a Plan participant. Payments after death of the participant. If you receive a distribution after the participant's death that you do not roll over, the distribution will generally be taxed in the same manner described elsewhere in this notice. However, whether the payment is a qualified distribution generally depends on when the participant first made a contribution to the designated Roth account in the Plan. Also, the 10% additional income tax on early distributions and the special rules for public safety officers do not apply, and the special rule described under the section "If you were born on or before January 1, 1936" applies only if the deceased participant was born on or before January 1, 1936.

If you are a surviving spouse. If you receive a payment from the Plan as the surviving spouse of a deceased participant, you have the same rollover options that the participant would have had, as described elsewhere in this notice. In addition, if you choose to do a rollover to an IRA, you may treat the IRA as your own or as an inherited IRA.

1. An IRA you treat as your own is treated like any other IRA of yours, so that payments made to you before you are age 59½ will be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies) and required minimum distributions from your IRA do not have to start until after you are age 70½ (if you were born before July 1, 1949), after age 72 (if you were born after June 30, 1949, and before January 1, 1951), or after age 73 (if you were born after December 31, 1950). You may make contributions and convert your traditional IRA to a Roth IRA.
2. If you treat the IRA as an inherited IRA, payments from the IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. However, if the participant had started taking required minimum distributions from the plan, you will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA. If the participant had not started taking required minimum distributions from the Plan, you will not have to start receiving required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA until the year the participant would have been age 70½ (if the participant were born before July 1, 1949), age 72 (if the participant were born after June 30, 1949, and before January 1, 1951), or age 73 (if the participant were born after December 31, 1950).

For Distributions from a designated Roth Account. If you receive a payment from the Plan as the surviving spouse of a deceased participant, you have the same rollover options that the participant would have had, as described elsewhere in this notice. In addition, if you choose to do a rollover to a Roth IRA, you may treat the Roth IRA as your own or as an inherited Roth IRA.

1. A Roth IRA you treat as your own is treated like any other Roth IRA of yours, so that you will not have to receive any required minimum distributions during your lifetime and earnings paid to you in a nonqualified distribution before you are age 59½ will be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions (unless an exception applies).
2. If you treat the Roth IRA as an inherited Roth IRA, payments from the Roth IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. An inherited Roth IRA is subject to required minimum distributions. If the participant had started taking required minimum distributions from the Plan, you will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited Roth IRA. If the participant had not started taking required minimum distributions, you will not have to start receiving required minimum distributions from the inherited Roth IRA until the year the participant would have been age 70½ (if the participant were born before July 1, 1949), age 72 (if the participant were born after June 30, 1949, and before January 1, 1951), or age 73 (if the participant was born after December 31, 1950).

If you are a surviving beneficiary other than a spouse. If you receive a payment from the Plan because of the participant's death and you are a designated beneficiary other than a surviving spouse, the only rollover option you have is to a direct rollover to an inherited IRA. Payments from the inherited IRA will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. You will have to receive required minimum distributions from the inherited IRA. You cannot make contributions to an inherited IRA or convert a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA.

Payments under a QDRO. If you are the spouse or former spouse of the participant who receives a payment from the Plan under a QDRO, you generally have the same options the participant would have (for example, you may roll over the payment to your own IRA or an eligible employer plan that will accept it and in which you are a participant.) Payments under the QDRO will not be subject to the 10% additional income tax on early distributions. There are no rollover options if QDRO payments are made to a non-spouse or non-former spouse.

Special tax treatment if you were born before 1936. If your distribution is a "lump sum distribution" from a qualified plan, and you were born before 1936, you may elect special treatment, but only if you do not roll over any part of the lump sum distribution. If you roll over only a portion of your distribution to an IRA, a governmental 457(b) plan, or a 403(b) plan, this special tax treatment is not available for the rest of the payment. A lump sum distribution is a distribution, within one calendar year, of your entire vested account balance (including any nontaxable portion of your distribution) under the Plan (and certain similar plans maintained by the Employer). If you are not a self-employed individual, the distribution must occur after you attain age 59½ or after you have separated from service with the Employer. For a self-employed individual, a lump sum distribution must occur after the self-employed individual attains age 59½ or becomes disabled.

Ten-year averaging. If you receive a lump sum distribution and you were born before 1936, you can make a one-time election to figure the tax on the lump sum distribution under "10-year averaging" using 1986 tax rates. Ten-year averaging often reduces the tax you owe.

Capital gain treatment. If you receive a lump sum distribution, you were born before 1936 and you were a participant in the Plan before 1974, you may elect to have the part of your lump sum distribution attributable to your pre-1974 participation taxed as long-term capital gain at a rate of 20%.

Special tax treatment election and limitations. You must have completed at least five years of active participation in the Plan for special tax treatment to apply to the lump sum distribution election. You may elect special tax treatment (ten-year averaging or capital gain treatment) by filing IRS Form 4972 with your income tax return. The instructions to Form 4972 provide further details regarding the reporting of your lump sum distribution and describe the rules for determining whether a distribution qualifies as a lump sum distribution. As a general rule, you may not elect special tax treatment for a lump sum distribution if you elected ten-year (or previously available five-year) averaging with respect to a prior lump sum distribution you received after December 31, 1986, or after you had attained age 59½. You may not elect this special tax treatment if you rolled amounts into this Plan from a 403(b) plan, from a governmental 457(b) plan or from an IRA not originally attributable to a qualified employer plan. You also may not elect special tax treatment if you previously rolled over another distribution from the Plan. Finally, you may not elect special tax treatment if you roll over your distribution to an IRA, a governmental 457(b) plan or a 403(b) plan and then take a distribution from the IRA, plan or annuity.

Repayment of participant loans. If you have an outstanding participant loan when you separate from service with the Employer, the Employer may reduce (“offset”) your account balance by the outstanding loan balance. The loan offset is a distribution and unless the loan was previously treated as a deemed distribution, the outstanding loan amount is taxable to you unless you roll over the amount of the offset. Withholding does not apply if the loan offset is your only distribution.

If you receive a distribution of cash or property in addition to the offset, withholding will apply to the entire distribution, but the withholding amount will not exceed the amount of cash or property (other than employer securities) you receive in addition to the offset.

Generally, you may roll over all or any portion of the offset amount. For a non-Roth distribution, any offset amount that is not rolled over will be taxed (including the 10% additional income tax on early distributions, unless an exception applies). You may roll over offset amounts to an IRA or an employer plan (if the terms of the employer plan permit the plan to receive plan loan offset rollovers).

How long you have to complete the rollover depends on what kind of plan loan offset you have. If you have a qualified plan loan offset, you will have until your tax return due date (including extensions) for the tax year during which the offset occurs to complete your rollover. A qualified plan loan offset occurs when a plan loan in good standing is offset because your employer plan terminates, or because you sever from employment. If your plan loan offset occurs for any other reason (such as a failure to make level loan repayments that results in a deemed distribution), then you have 60 days from the date the offset occurs to complete your rollover.

U.S. Armed Forces service. You may have special rollover rights if you recently served in the U.S. Armed Forces. For more information, see IRS Publication 3, Armed Forces’ Tax Guide.

Eligible Retired Public Safety Officer. If the plan is a governmental plan, you retired as a public safety officer, and your retirement was by reason of disability or was after normal retirement age, you can exclude from your taxable income plan payments paid as premiums to an accident or health plan (or a qualified long-term care insurance contract) that your employer maintains for you, your spouse, or your dependents, up to a maximum of $3,000 annually. For this purpose, a public safety officer is a law enforcement officer, firefighter, chaplain, or member of a rescue squad or ambulance crew.

Nonresident Alien. If you are a nonresident alien and you do not do a direct rollover to a U.S. IRA or U.S. employer plan, instead of withholding 20%, the Plan is generally required to withhold 30% of the payment for federal income taxes. If the amount withheld exceeds the amount of tax you owe (as may happen if you do a 60-day rollover), you may request an income tax refund by filing Form 1040NR and attaching your Form 1042-S. See Form W-8BEN for claiming that you are entitled to a reduced rate of withholding under an income tax treaty. For more information, see also IRS Publication 519, U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens, and IRS Publication 515, Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities.

3405 NOTICE SPECIAL RULES FOR PENSIONS, ANNUITIES, AND CERTAIN OTHER DEFERRED INCOME

If you are receiving a periodic payment from your retirement plan that is not considered an eligible rollover distribution, it will be subject to federal income tax withholding unless you elect not to have withholding apply. Withholding will only apply to the portion of your distribution or withdrawal payment that is considered income, and therefore subject to federal income tax. You may elect not to have withholding apply to your distribution or withdrawal payments by properly completing, signing, dating and returning to your Plan Administrator the Form W- 4P Withholding Certificate for Pension or Annuity Payments. Your election will remain in effect until you change or revoke it. You may change or revoke your election at any time by returning another completed, signed, and dated Form W-4P to your Plan Administrator. Any election or revocation will be effective no later than thirty (30) days upon receipt. You may make and revoke your withholding elections as often as you wish. A Form W-4P may be obtained from your Plan Administrator.

If you have not properly filed with your Plan Administrator a Form W-4 or W-4P, either prior to or after January 1, 2004, then federal income tax will be withheld from the taxable portion of your distribution or withdrawal payments based on a filing status of married, claiming three withholding allowances (default withholding changed to a filing status of single, claiming zero withholding allowances for distribution or withdrawal payments beginning on and after January 1, 2023).

If you elect not to have withholding apply to your distribution or withdrawal payments, or if you do not have enough federal income tax withheld from your distribution or withdrawal payments, you may be responsible for payment of estimated tax. You may incur penalties under the estimated tax rules if your withholding and estimated tax payments are not sufficient.
