

Objective

The Fund is an index fund that seeks investment results that correspond generally to the price and yield performance, before fees and expenses, of its underlying index.

Strategy

The Fund shall be invested and reinvested in a portfolio of equity securities with the objective of approximating as closely as practicable the capitalization weighted total rate of return of the segment of the United States market for publicly traded equity securities represented by the medium capitalized companies. The criterion for selection of investments shall be the S&P MidCap 400 Index. BlackRock Financial Management, Inc. uses a “passive” or indexing approach to try to achieve the Fund’s investment objective. Unlike many funds, the Fund does not try to outperform the index it seeks to track and does not seek temporary defensive positions when markets decline or appear overvalued. BlackRock Financial Management, Inc. uses a replication indexing strategy to manage the Fund. “Replication” is an indexing strategy in which the Fund generally invests in substantially all of the securities in its Underlying Index in approximately the same proportions as in the Underlying Index (see Additional Disclosures for definition).

The results shown represent past performance and do not represent expected future performance or experience. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Investment return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor’s units, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than the data quoted. Performance data current to the most recent month-end may be obtained by visiting savingsplusnow.com.

The index returns do not include the deduction of investment management and trustee services fees which would lower a participant’s return.

Additional Disclosures

The S&P MidCap 400 Index is designed to measure the performance of 400 mid-sized companies in the U.S., reflecting this market segments distinctive risk and return characteristics. Mid cap exposure generally captures a phase in the typical corporate life cycle in which firms have successfully navigated the challenges specific to small companies, such as raising initial capital and managing early growth. At the same time, mid caps tend to be quite dynamic and not so large that continued growth is unattainable. As a result, the mid cap segment may offer aspects of the markets not covered by the large and small cap worlds. No fees or commissions are subtracted from index returns and it is not possible to invest directly in a market index.

The Fund may use futures, options, or other derivatives, and is operated by a person who has claimed an exclusion from the definition of a commodity pool operator under the Commodity Exchange Act and is, therefore, not subject to registration or regulation under that Act. The investment managers may use futures, options, swaps, or other derivatives as a substitute for taking a position in the underlying asset; to seek to take advantage of changes in securities prices, interest rates, and other factors affecting value; to hedge risk; to maintain liquidity; or for other reasons. Each of these strategies has its own risks and could decrease the value of the Fund. The managers of the Fund currently do not expect to make significant use of derivatives in implementing its investment strategy.

The Program allows the Custodian to lend securities within the Fund, which entails risk. The primary risks include the possibility of the borrower becoming insolvent and the potential for the value of the collateral provided to fall below the cost of replacing the lent securities. If both of these events were to occur, the Fund would incur a financial loss equal to the difference between the two, potentially negatively impacting the performance of the Fund. Securities lending revenue earned by the Plan is used to help offset Savings Plus administrative expenses.
