As a married investor, retirement may bring concerns about the financial well-being of you and your spouse. Particularly, you may worry about making sure your spouse is taken care of if they outlive you.

That’s why most Nationwide® variable annuities offer the Spousal Protection Death Benefit Feature. It’s available on all Nationwide DestinationSM 2.0 variable annuities at no additional cost. Spousal protection gives you the opportunity to extend the guaranteed death benefit to cover both spouses, regardless of who passes away first.

We work differently

When it comes to spousal protection, how death benefits are triggered makes a difference.

Our variable annuities are annuitant-driven, which allows a co-annuitant to be named to the contract. This means that a death benefit will be paid when either spouse passes away. Nationwide is the only provider that offers this option on annuities funded with qualified money (IRAs).1

Inside, we’ll talk more about how this feature is unique among annuity providers and how it helps you and your spouse protect each other.

Annuity basics

An annuity is a long-term, tax-deferred investment you buy from an insurance company to help you save for retirement.

But, as with most things in life, an annuity does have limitations. If you decide to take your money out early, you may face fees called surrender charges. Plus, if you’re not yet 59½, you may also have to pay an additional 10% tax on top of ordinary income taxes. A death benefit is available with most variable annuities, and naturally, if you do take an early withdrawal, your death benefit and the contract value of the annuity contract will be reduced.

You should also know that an annuity contains guarantees and protections that are subject to the claims-paying ability of Nationwide Life Insurance Company. But these guarantees don’t apply to any variable accounts, which are subject to investment risk, including possible loss of your principal.

This material is not a recommendation to buy, sell, hold or roll over any asset, adopt an investment strategy, retain a specific investment manager or use a particular account type. It does not take into account the specific investment objectives, tax and financial condition or particular needs of any specific person. Investors should discuss their specific situation with their financial professional.
Dual protection with a guaranteed death benefit

When added to your variable annuity, the Spousal Protection Death Benefit Feature helps you and your spouse provide for each other regardless of who passes away first, even if only one spouse owns the contract. This could be especially important if one of you passes away at a time when the markets and your contract value are down.

Details on Nationwide’s spousal protection

- It’s available at no additional cost on Nationwide Destination 2.0 variable annuities
- Surrender charges are waived when the first spouse passes away
- The surviving spouse has the flexibility to choose between:
  - Continuing the contract with no tax consequences at the death benefit amount and naming a new beneficiary, or
  - Taking a lump-sum distribution with no penalties
- It’s available on qualified (IRA) or nonqualified investments

How is spousal protection unique for IRAs?

Nationwide® variable annuities are annuitant-driven, giving them more flexibility. That’s important since IRAs can have only one account owner with a death benefit that’s paid to the contract beneficiary. With spousal protection, an IRA account owner can be named annuitant and their spouse co-annuitant; both can be named a beneficiary. As a result, the death benefit will go to the surviving spouse, no matter which spouse passes away first.

Nationwide is the only provider who does this on IRAs.

Some details about requirements for spousal protection to work on an IRA:

- One spouse must be named annuitant, the other must be named co-annuitant, and both spouses must be named as beneficiaries; maximum issue ages may vary based on the death benefit elected
- No other person may be named as contract owner, annuitant, co-annuitant or beneficiary
